ELECTION RESULTS, 1919-1933

HARROW-ON-THE-HILL UDC, 1919-1933

			Frederick R. Marriott	Ind	144	6.0
			Alfred T. Wilson	Ind	134	5.6
			Edward G. Bunyan	Ind	80	3.4

Note: Both the Harrow Observer and the Harrow Gazette reported the total number of electors as 7,831, with 2,388 voting. The Observer gave a summary of the polling statistics as follows:

Polling District (PD)	PD Letter	Register Entries	District Electors	Voted	T'out
Harrow-on-the-Hill	F	3,206	2,855	800	28.0%
Greenhill	G	6,095	5,256	1,588	30.2%

There is clearly an error, as printed, in this breakdown as the figures imply a total 'district' electorate of 8,111. A contemporary analysis of the Register corrected the number of electors at Roxeth Hill and assumes the reported number voting is correct:

Polling District (PD)	PD Letter	Register Entries	District Electors	Voted	T'out
Harrow-on-the-Hill	F	3,206	2,563	800	31.2%
Greenhill	G	6,095	5,256	1,588	30.2%
Totals		9,301	7,819	2,388	30.5%

Baker was described by the Harrow Observer as having "gained public favour daily for his solid views", and that he had "in very great measure the active support of the Liberal Party".

Vaughan had the assistance of the Traders' Association; the Observer commenting that the Association gave him "unqualified support". On polling day "he [Vaughan] was unlucky in that during a vital part of the day he lost touch with many people owing to an accident in which although Mr. Wright Cooper [a local baker and caterer] suffered severe injuries, he happily escaped." The Harrow Gazette added that Wright Cooper was in a car that collided with an Air Force motor van. "Mr. Wright Cooper sustained a broken arm, and Mr. Long who was driving had one of his hands injured and the front part of the car was considerably damaged."

For information on the political views of Gough, see Appendix W (p. 215).

The Harrow Observer made the following observation of the Labour Party candidates: "Messrs. Jordan and Bartle had done a good deal of solid work in canvassing and had the assistance of a small army of helpers, who were determined their henchmen should be returned to carry out their behests."

Although Bartle attended a Harrow Labour Party meeting in February 1921 — presenting a paper on 'A Levy on Wealth' — his affiliation to Labour appears to have weakened by May. The Harrow Observer commented in a (generally anti-Labour Party) editorial that "when elected with his colleague [Cllr. Jordan], Bartle came into fame as a Labour man. He soon discovered, however, that the work he was called upon to do in a corporate capacity had no relation to the nostrums of Labour or of Socialism. The result is that in the eyes of the stiff-backed Labourite he has broken from the fold, is beyond redemption and is doomed to be everlastingly ostracised from former comrades."

Note: This was the first election to Harrow-on-the-Hill UDC where the district was divided into four, rather than two, polling districts. The statistics were:

Polling District (PD)	PD Letter	Register Entries	Parliamentary Electors	District Electors
Greenhill	F	2,535	2,526	2,151
Harrow-on-the-Hill	G	2,381	2,369	1,983

West Harrow	I	2,664	2,658	2,382
Totals		9,271	9,239	7,902

The Harrow Observer reported that there were 7,903 electors on the Register. Turnout has been calculated on the basis of their report that 2,557 voted.

Lascelles, Charles, Exeter, Bruce, Vaughan and Tuck sought election on a joint 'ticket'.

The candidature of Atkins, a member of the Union of General Workers, was supported by the local Labour Party even though he was not an official candidate.

For information on the political views of Gough, see Appendix W (p. 215).

The Harrow Observer commented on polling day as follows: "This year there were four [polling] stations, the chief feature being that the Roxeth schools as a station were denuded of their ancient splendour as a polling booth, the venue being transferred to the Sunday School in Northolt Road, and a new station was opened at the Harrow Fire Station for the advantage of the Hill voters....., the other two stations being at the Vaughan Road Schools and St. Ann's Road Schools." The paper reported that the Labour candidates "worked extremely hard, and another conspicuous figure was Captain Bruce who genially hunted up his friends and supporters. Few carriages were employed, but some candidates were fortunate in the loan of well-equipped motors. One energetic partisan, during the day, whipped up no fewer than 49 electors in his side-car."

Of the count, the Observer reported that "once the counting had commenced there was not the slightest doubt as to the result the 'ticket' were polling in the proportion of nearly two to one The prominent feature of the early figures were that the Labour candidates were nowhere — much to their chagrin — and the extreme popularity which Captain Bruce enjoyed, a surprise probably to the gallant sailor himself. Mr. Atkins at one time looked a likely winner as he polled a large number of 'plumpers' but his support fell off towards the end...."

The Harrow Observer stated that the number of electors at this election was 7,903. Turnout has been calculated on the basis that the reported number voting (2,423) is correct.

Connelly was a prominent member of the 'Bessborough Social and Harrow Ratepayers' Association', and received support from its members.

Tuck and Champriss both claimed to have been approached by Harrow Chamber of Trade to run on their 'ticket'. Tuck assented; however, "at the last minute, without any notice", he was "thrown over, 'left in the cart', and it was not cricket". In the case of Champriss, he refused, preferring to run as a "real independent candidate than get in by a ticket system". He styled himself as the 'Independent and Anti-Waste' candidate.

The Observer claimed that "despite shouting and red ties the Labour four were, in a municipal sense, anathema to the ordinary voter. It could hardly be expected otherwise. They were roundly blamed for the coal strike and prospective evils and got little or no sympathy. Councillor A.N. Tuck, who, rumour said, had been coquetting with the Labour Party, felt the reaction and received a share of their disapproval"

Note: Retiring councillor Dr. William S. Darby was nominated to contest this election but withdrew his nomination papers within the allowable period.

Although this election was uncontested, a Board of Guardians election was held on 1 April. The Harrow Observer and Gazette reported a turnout of 7.1% among the 8,295 electors.

The Council voted as follows to decide which of the five unopposed candidates be deemed to have filled the casual vacancy resulting from the death of Lascelles: Handley 10 votes, Baker 1 vote, Tuck 1 vote, Bartle 0 votes, Jordan 0 votes.

Note: Rose-Troup, Ashworth and Bradford contested the election on a joint 'ticket'. In addition, Bradford received the endorsement of the local Roman Catholic church.

Rose-Troup had been a Captain in the Queen's Regiment during the Great War and was noted as a war poet. Three of his poems ('What is War?', 'Harrow's Honour' and 'The Listeners'), written whilst a prisoner-of-war in Germany, were included in the anthology The Muse in Arms, edited by E.B. Osborn (John Murray, London, 1917, pp. 161, 176, 267). Rose-Troup is mentioned in Paul Kendall's book Aisne 1914: The Dawn of Trench Warfare (Spellmount, Stroud, 2012, p. 292).

Note: The circumstances surrounding the creation of this vacancy were controversial. Bartle resigned after a protracted dispute at the Annual Meeting of the Council on 16 April during which he failed to be elected as Chairman of the Council. Bartle had been proposed by Cllr. Jordan and seconded by Cllr. Handley, whilst Cllr. White proposed and Cllr. Dempster seconded an amendment that Cllr. Bruce be the Chairman. (See Harrow Observer and Gazette, 20 April 1923, p. 6.)

The official record of the meeting and the question of the legality of the election of the eventual Chairman (E.W. de W. Bruce) can be followed in Harrow-on-the-Hill Urban District Council Minute Book No. 43 as follows:

pp. 1-4 (16 April 1923): Dispute during the election of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

pp. 24-28 (3 May 1923): Resignation of Bartle from the Council; doubts over the legality of the Annual Meeting; V.D. Dempster appointed Chairman pro tem.

pp. 82-85 (14 May 1923): Matter resolved with E.W. de W. Bruce reinstated as Chairman.

Bartle subsequently described his resignation as a protest against "intrigues and secret conclave" and "cliques and backstair methods."

			Mrs. Sarah R. Ludbrook	Lab	550	32.2

Note: The Harrow Observer reported that 1,708 electors went to the Poll and this figure has been used to calculate the turnout. However, the paper printed the following voters at the polling stations: Greenhill 495, Harrow-on-the-Hill 316, Roxeth 342, West Harrow 552; total 1,705.

Cosgrove was formerly an Inspector of Police. The Observer claimed that many electors "did not take [his candidature] seriously".

On 1 October 1928 the Middlesex (Harrow-on-the-Hill Urban District) Confirmation Order no. 72,899 transferred 101 acres of Northolt parish (Uxbridge RD) to Harrow-on-the-Hill UD when the parish was disbanded. This was the first election following the Order coming into force. The area transferred formed a specific part of polling district I (Northolt) of the 1928 Uxbridge division Register of Electors, and contained 56 Parliamentary electors of whom 51 were local government electors.

The total number of electors and turnout (2,484 voting) shown above were reported by the Harrow Observer and Gazette. A Special Report presented to the Middlesex County Council in 1932 showed the total electors as 10,914 (22.8% turnout based on 2,484 voting).

Ozanne was the Estates Manager of Harrow School and sought election in the School's interest. He was also officer commanding of the Harrow Officers' Training Corps.

The Chamber of Trade candidates received support from the local Conservative Association, as they were 'Anti-Socialist' candidates. It should be noted that one of them (Crichton) had been the Liberal Party candidate for Newcastle upon Tyne North at the previous year's General Election.

The Harrow Observer and Gazette did not report the number of electors, merely commenting that there were "206 more names on the Register". If correct, and if the electorate figure for the 1931 election is accurate, a local government electorate of 13,219 is implied. It is assumed that the reported turnout (3,065 voting) is accurate; this has been used in the 'percentage' calculations. A Special Report presented to the Middlesex County Council in 1932 showed the electorate as 13,478 (22.7% turnout based on 3,065 voting), a significant discrepancy from the other sources.

Buttle was the Chairman of the West Harrow Ratepayers' and Residents' Association.

The Chamber of Trade candidates received support from the local Conservative Association.
