

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I will always be grateful to the late John Turner and George Gange for their help and assistance when, in the early 1980s, I first started researching this period of Harrow's electoral history.

The staff of a number of libraries have been most hospitable and courteous when I have visited. Thanks go to past and present staff at: Local History Library, formerly located at the Civic Centre, Station Road, Harrow, but now at the Headstone Manor Museum; Hendon Library and Archives, The Burroughs, Hendon, London NW4; Hillingdon Local Studies, Archives and Museum Service, High Street, Uxbridge; The London Metropolitan Archives (LMA), 40 Northampton Road, London EC1. Particular appreciation goes to Hazel Ogilvie (Harrow) and Yasmine Webb and Hugh Petrie (Barnet) for their patience during my many visits. Additionally, I am grateful to Andrew Lott and his colleagues in the conservation team at the LMA for providing images of some pages from the 1895 volume of Hendon Guardians Minutes which were unavailable for personal inspection. Furthermore, Andrew kindly provided an image of a portion of the 1931 Hendon Parliamentary division Register of Electors that answered a query about Kingsbury's electorate at the 1932 UDC election.

I would like to thank Jonathan Blaney and the British History Online (BHO) team for allowing me to reproduce two maps showing parish boundaries before the passing of the Local Government Act 1894. The BHO home page on the internet can be found at <https://www.british-history.ac.uk/>.

I am grateful to David Boothroyd, a City of Westminster councillor and elections expert, for explaining how the Local Government Act 1894 applied when 'under-nomination' occurred at local government elections. David also alerted me to the online maps available from the National Library of Scotland, <https://maps.nls.uk/>, a superb source for researching and understanding boundaries of local authorities.

Finally, thanks go to Three Rivers District Councillor Steve Cox for reading a draft of Appendix Z and for making several helpful suggestions for improvement.

Technical Notes

Word processing software: Corel WordPerfect X6.
Font: Ottawa.

Online edition: Regularly updated, corrected and uploaded to the internet.
Internet hosting: 1&1 IONOS Ltd.

A 'Revised Edition' to the original volume was available from October 2020.
Second Edition (incorporating Kingsbury UDC) was available from November 2021.

Printed and published by C.J. Gray, 77 Harlech Road, Abbots Langley, Hertfordshire, WD5 0BE.